How to write a report:

What is a report?

In writing, a report is a document that is both systematic and defines or analyzes the subject matter. Systematic is relative to the content, which should be written in such a way that the data is presented in the correct order, making the document very readable. A report can be an evaluation of research, an interpretation of facts or events, a concise record or a recommendation of some kind. From technical to laboratory, you may be called on to write many different types of reports. The most important thing is that the report is carefully planned and written using formal structuring.
